Current & Potential Level

Murilo Oliveira de Freitas is a 21-year-old left winger who currently plays for CD Tondela on loan from Mirassol (SP). In my opinion, Murilo has also the qualities to play as a left midfielder or even as a left-wing back, due to his good stamina and defensive skills.

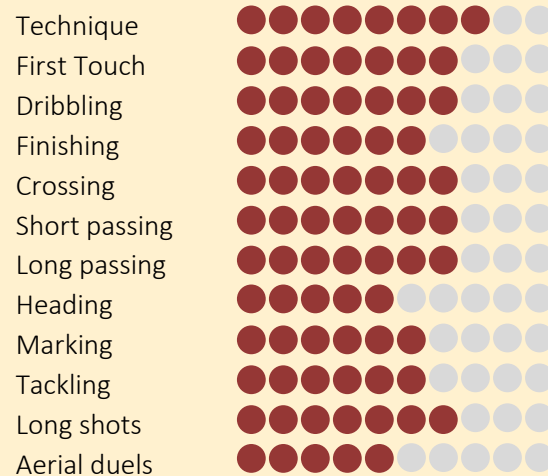

The young Brazilian scores high rates on his physical attributes: he is a fast player with quick reactions and has good balance. His technical attributes are also quite impressive. A solid technique, a decent first touch, dribbling and passing skills. He is mainly left-footed, but his right foot is also decent.

He works hard for his team on the pitch, on both defensive and offensive aspects of the game. That has negative consequences as well, as he appears to be 'less fresh' in front of the goal. That is also probably the reason why he has only scored 4 goals in 32 appearances thus far.

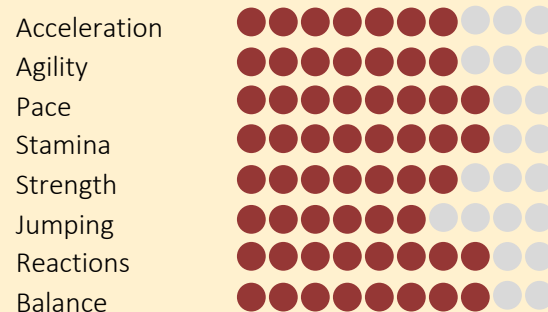

If he can keep on progressing, Murilo certainly has the potential to play on a higher level than his current level. With his style of play, he would be a suitable option for the most ambitious teams in any decent European league.
