Current & Potential Level

Mark Flekken (24) is a tall goalkeeper who currently plays for MSV Duisburg in the German 2.Bundesliga. The Dutchman reminds me a bit of his fellow countryman and former international goalkeeper Edwin van der Sar.

Flekken is a goalkeeper with solid reflexes and quick hands, despite being 1m95 tall. He makes it a hard task for any opponents to beat him in one on ones. The Dutchman had his breakthrough last season, where he won the championship with his team in the German 3.Liga and managed to keep 15 clean sheets during the seasons. He had a solid start as well in the 2.Bundesliga, despite conceding 5 goals in 4 games. Flekken has the tendency to often stay on his goal line during set pieces or crosses. I believe there is still room for improvement on his explosiveness and his aerial duels. With his length, he could become unbeatable in the air with excellent jumping abilities.

I am convinced that Flekken is currently one of the better goalkeepers in the German 2.Bundesliga and could make a move to a mid-table team in the Bundesliga next season if he keeps on progressing. He would also be a good signing for ambitious teams in the Belgian Jupiler Pro League or the Dutch Eredivisie.
